JOHNNY LORE, 20 TO DAY, HAS 125 BATTLES UNDER HIS BELT.

One of the busiest little fighting men in the business is Johnny Lore, who, although he still has a year to go before he will become a real adult, has about 125 battles under his belt. Johnny will pass his 20th milestone today, having been born on the last day of 1894, and he has been scrapping four years. During his first year in the game, 1911, he took part in 41 bouts, and won 25 by knockouts. His success as a preliminary boxer made him a favorite with the fans and gave him a chance at bigger game.

Lore's first defeat came in 1912, when he was stopped by Tommy Houck. Last year he fought Joe Mandot, the clever Frenchman, to a draw in 10 rounds at New Orleans, and also fought a 12 round draw with Joe Shugrine in Youngstown, O. He then returned to New Orleans, where he was knocked out by Frankie Russell, the Crescent City Italian. Lore also got the worst of it in a 12 round bout with Gilbert Gallant, the conqueror of Leach Cross, in Boston. Lore's recent battles haven't proved him a wonder, but now that he is at his best several pounds above the lightweight limit, he has a chance to cop the welterweight title. Almost any boxer who can make the weight has that.

This is also the birthday of Danny Webster, the English boxer, who at one time made a considerable noise in the featherweight division. Webster was born 29 years ago today in Canterbury, Eng., but most of his scrapping was done in Los Angeles. His first big battle was in 1905, when Ad Wolgast stopped him in 18 rounds. He defeated Charlie White in a 20 round affair at Vernon in 1910, but Joe Rivers practically ended his career when he knocked Webster out in the 13th round at Vernon about four years ago.

Another veteran who celebrates his birthday on the last day of the year is Charley Goldman, the little Hebrew boxer. Charley was born in Russia, but escaped to America at an early age, and took up the honorable profession of fistfights about ten years ago, when he was 16. Goldman twice fought Johnny Coulton when the latter was bantamweight champion, and on each occasion stayed the full 10 rounds, but without winning any particular glory.

Robert M. Byrne, for several years a third baseman with the Pirates and the Phillies, was born in St. Louis 29 years ago today. Byrne broke into professional baseball just ten years ago, when he played with Fort Scott, Kan., in the Western Association. He was at Springfield, Mo., in 1905, taking turns behind the bat and also playing first and short and in the outfield. The next year he went to Shreveport, La., which then had a club in the Southern Association, as a shortstop. His work there was so good that he was called into the big show in 1907, covering third base for the St. Louis Cardinals. It stands to reason, however, that no baseball player could possibly make good in his native city, and in 1909 Byrne was swapped to the Pirates. He remained in the Smoky City until 1913, when a mid-season deal sent him to Philadelphia. Byrne has played a good game with the Phillies, although he has never figured as an infield player, and his batting has never reached the 300 mark. This year he batted around the .275 mark, which is about his average for several years past.

TODAY IN PUGILISTIC ANNALS.

1788—William Warr defeated Will Wood in a long battle near London. Like most of the great battles of that period, Warr hailed from Bristol, where he gave a good account of himself in several battles before he was matched, for the championship with Tom Johnson in 1787. He was defeated by the champion, but recovered his laurels by whipping Will Wood. "the Coachman," who was a hard hitting and stubborn fighter. A little later Warr got into a fight with a blacksmith, and landed a blow on the smith's jaw that ended forever the career of the latter. Warr served a term in prison for that. Warr then tried to get a match with Dan Mendoza, who had claimed the title after Johnson's retirement, but the Jew refused to meet him until Warr slapped his face. The Hebrew then consented to the match, and twice defeated Warr in battles for the title. That ended Warr's fighting career.

1885—Danny Webster, British featherweight boxer, born at Canterbury, Eng.

erweight boxer, born at Canterbury, Eng. 1888—Charley Goldman, Hebrew bantamweight boxer, born in Russia. 1902—Joe Gans defeated Charley Sieger in 10 rounds at Boston.

UNDERTAKER PAYS DUES; NEGRO BURIED IN STATE.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 31.—The body of Walter Campbell, a negro barber, was buried today in the most elaborate casket that the largest local undertaking establishment could provide. The hearse was followed by a procession of carriages provided by the undertaker.

Just before the Jeffries-Johnson fight Campbell made a bet with the white undertaker. If Jeffries won Campbell was to shave the undertaker free as long as they both lived. If Johnson won, the undertaker was to provide a state funeral for Campbell. Today the undertaker conscientiously carried out the terms of the bet.

No Trade in Sight Declares Herman

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 31.—Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Chicago National League baseball team, conferred with August Hermann here today as to a possible trade of players. Mr. Hermann said that nothing had been done and that no trades were in sight. Bresnahan, who returned to Chicago tonight, also said that the conference was fruitless. Manager Horzog is expected here tomorrow and it is believed that he will announce his program of deals for new players.

WOLVERTON COMING EAST.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 31.—Harry Wolverton, who managed the New York Americans in 1912, is likely to be seen in the East again next season. Information to this effect was in circulation at National League headquarters here yesterday. Two clubs in the International League, where for one season he managed Newark, are known to be after him. One is believed to be Richmond, which is applying for a franchise. Wolverton was one of the owners of the Sacramento club in the Pacific Coast League last year. SPORTS ETA SHRD CMFWK

JAMISON RETURNS HOME WITH FAST HORSES.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 31.—Fred Jamison, biggest money winning driver over the half mile tracks last season, has returned from Lexington, Ky., with three promising colts, two for his string at the Washington fair grounds and one for the stable of Harry Fleming at the same place. All three horses are owned by Pittsburgh men and were purchased recently at the Kentucky horse center.

The speediest horse of the trio is Major Spier (3), 2:10 1-4, a 3-year-old trotter, by Directum Spier. This bay gelding is owned by J. C. Gormley, of Pittsburgh. The other horse for Jamison's string is Guy Rea, a bay stallion with a mark of 2:18. He is sired by George Todd, comes of fast stock and is owned by J. F. Howley, of Pittsburgh. This young trotter is named for Guy Rea, the well known trainer and driver of Pittsburgh.

TONY'S SWEETHEART

By HAROLD CARTER.

"You see, mees," explained Tony, "I cannot come to night school for two, three weeks, because I going to be married."

Miss Eversham, who counted Tony as one of her most promising pupils, was decidedly surprised. Tony was a sculptor of those little terra cotta and clay figures which are sold by peddlers on city streets; but he had a genuine artistic ability which Miss Eversham prided herself on having discovered. She had even projected a brilliant future for him, beginning with a course at the Cooper Union and ending with commissions from state governments and crowned heads.

"But, Tony, you didn't tell me anything about this," objected Miss Eversham, a little petulant.

"But I did not know till las' week, mees," responded the young fellow. "I got a letter from my cousin Maria, in Palermo. He save my father's life in the time of the revolution. Now he write he is an old man and to die, and have no money. So I must marry his daughter, Maria, whom I never see. He say she is nineteen and ver' beautiful, and she meet me on boat tomorrow."

"Well, Tony, I wish you happiness," answered Miss Eversham, dubiously. "But after you are married, come to see me. I want to talk to you about—about your studies."

Three days later Tony appeared, smiling.

"It is all ri', Mees Eversham," he said. "I no marry till Christmas."

"How is that, Tony?" inquired the teacher.

"Well, mees, I go to the boat," Tony explained, "and there is no Maria. But instead, a fashionable young woman ask for me by name. 'Are you Tony Salati?' she ask. I am friend of Maria. My father have beeg estate near Palermo. Maria she cannot come. She say you mus' send money, then she come." So I send money at Christmas, and then Maria come to me."

Miss Eversham was still more dubious, and her anxiety on behalf of her protegee was not lessened when, as the weeks passed by, Tony's face became more and more downcast. Miss Eversham rallied him on his despondency in view of his approaching marriage, but it was not until late in the year that Tony vouchsafed an explanation.

"It is all gone, all my hope gone," he said, pulling a photograph out of his pocket. "Look, Mees Eversham!"

Miss Eversham studied the photograph with dismay. It was that of an extremely plain young woman, slatternly and gaudily attired, and the shoulders were those of a hunchback.

"That ees Maria," said Tony. "She is a cripple and can never stand on her feet. All her life she go so."

"But, Tony," said Miss Eversham, "surely it is not necessary for you to marry a girl whom you have never seen, if she is to be an invalid all her life."

"I have sent the money," said Tony, hopelessly. "She arrive in 'tree weeks."

"But why, Tony?"

"Her father save my father during the revolution," said Tony. Then suddenly he clasped his hands and wept unreasonably. "Oh, it ees hard, Mees Eversham," he said. "I love Juliana Legardi."

Miss Eversham drew the story from him then. Juliana was the young woman who had brought him news of Maria. She had come to America to display some paintings, and had achieved great success. Already she had become something of a vogue in the world of art. Only twenty-two, she bade fair to be one of those women painters whom modern Italy is producing in numbers. She had taken an interest in Tony, and he had fallen madly in love with her. Poor Tony! He felt that he was not worthy to kiss the ground she walked upon.

"An honest man may aspire to the hand of any woman," said Miss Eversham, in a pardonable aphorism. "Tony, there is no reason why you should consider yourself bound to marry your cousin."

"I have sent her the money," explained Tony, hopelessly.

"But, Tony—"

"Her father save my father in the time of the revolution," Tony continued, and there was such finality in his tone that Miss Eversham ventured no more.

About 50 horses are being trained at the Washington fair plant.

Wes. Varsity May Play Game At Huntington

FAIRMONT MAY MISS THANKS-GIVING FOOTBALL GAME NEXT YEAR.

COACH CHAMBERS HAS MADE MAN. STANSBURY A VERY ATTRACTIVE OFFER.

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Dec. 31.—Manager H. T. Stansbury announced here today that it was possible that Wesleyan would play at Huntington next Thanksgiving day instead of at Fairmont as was thought as Coach Chambers of the Marshall College team had made him an offer that was too good to be turned down without a very good reason indeed. It was not given out just what the offer of Marshall amounted to, but it is known that it must have been very inviting. The announcement of a probable game at Huntington next Turkey day created a great deal of surprise in sporting circles here as it was thought that the annual game with W. V. U. was settled for that date, but it was also given out that the state school has not decided what they can do as yet, and therefore the annual game between Wesleyan and West Virginia is still to be decided upon. The followers of the Wesleyan team here favor taking on the state team on the big Turkey day, but it is known that the Marshall team always figure in the state championship and that next year they will have an unusually strong team as it will be almost entirely veteran, and a game between the state champions and the strongest team in the southern part of the state played at Huntington would attract a record crowd. Two years ago the Wesleyan team met Marshall at Huntington on Turkey day and was held to the lowest score of the year by state teams, that was 13 to 0.

Grid. Coach's Leg Is Broken Again

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 31.—Word has just been received from Coach Sol S. Metzger of the West Virginia football team that he was compelled to undergo a second operation on his fractured leg in the Memorial hospital at Johnstown, Pa. Coach Metzger had his leg fractured in two places during the football season this fall and after he was released from the hospital it was found that the bones were not knitting properly. Only a fibrous tissue formed at the broken points, and after returning to his home at Bedford, Pa., an X-ray examination was made.

The attending physicians held a consultation and decided that it would be necessary to break the leg over and this was performed last Saturday night.

Many Schools to Aid Belgian Children

HUNTINGTON, Dec. 31.—Eighteen schools have decided to put on games for the benefit of the children of Belgium. The names of these will be announced for the first time January 1. Some schools where there are no teams are asking to be allowed to get into the movement by raising the money in some other way. It has been decided to give them this privilege and further, the church teams are allowed to enter. Secretary Chambers, of the Intercollegiate Association, receives an average of three entries each day.

and this, he says, will be increased as soon as the principals of the various schools return from their vacation. He expects at least a hundred games to be played as already five teams in Huntington have set their dates. It is thought that Wheeling, Parkersburg and Charleston, Fairmont and Clarksburg will furnish five or six games, as basketball is very popular in those towns.
